

Our new look...

OK, it was time for a change, so with the help of Justin Davis of Nine Windows Design, who came up with the new design concept, and Diane and Wayne Morris of Graphic Arts who realized the changes, here is the new www.erieaviation.com.

We hope you will find the site informative whether you are seeking a repair source for an aircraft faucet or just want to find out what the heck a cargo hook is. Let us also hope we won't bore you to tears...

The site is organized much the same way it was. You can look up our...

- Suppliers get an intro and a link to some of Europe's best known aviation component manufacturers
- Products see what they are and what they do
- Services find out what we can repair (our Capabilities List) and review our certificates as an FAA and EASA Repair Station
- Markets take a look at the aircraft types that have our components on board
- Customers the kind of aircraft operators we look after

And you can also meet our people and check the weather in Erie by going to ABOUT US, although the short answer to the weather question is usually SNOW (November through March) or RAIN (the rest of the year).

Please let us know what you think about our new looks and especially if there is additional information you would like to see us cover – just go to the CONTACT US page.
